"MASCOT"

"The Mascot" will be precented to 8:15. Everything is now ready and nil delays have been cut down to a minimum, so that from the moment the curtain ascends at 8:15, to the finale of the third act, "The Mascot" vill run smoothly and brinkly.

The last rehearsal, held yesterday vening foretells the splendid manner which "The Mascot" will go tonight. At that rehearsal all three acts, and the extras, were run through with a vim and smoothness which speaks well for the final performance.

The Opera House has been hum ning with busy workers all day today. preparing the "setting" for "The Mascot," It takes some little time to prepare for a production on the scale of the present one, but by tonight everything will be ready.

Public interest in "The Mascot, which has never for a moment flagged since the first announcement was made, has today reached the genith and it is safe to say that "The Moscot" has been mentioned by nearly everybody on the streets during the course of the day.

There has been a terrible scran-ble seats and both nights are now. nearly sold out, only a very few renaining for both performances. This list of principals is read. Every infl-vidual one of these can collect a large crowd, so when combined, as they are in "The Mascot," It is only natural to expect to see the "Standing Room sign displayed. "The Muscot" well deserves the support it is bound to get, as it is doubtful if a prettier been produced locally by amateurs.

The music is particularly bright and music scattered liberally throughout the score, and Captain Berger, who conducts the orchestra, will see to it $4.1216; that the audience will have the beat $83.50; rendition of that score to be heard

Mr. Herzer, who has been directing "The Mascot" and managing the prolefted with everything, which means to say everybody else will be satisfie:

When we look back to the first re hearsni and then turn to last night's affair, we can realize what a great amount of work has been entailed in this production, and what excellent esults have come from that labor.

And now for the hit of the season The band plays, the curtain ascends

ate that the rubber market has gone to pieces on account of over-produc-

William Williamson, who is inter sted in local rubber properties, stated that the price of rubber has droped off, due principally to the conditions following the October panic in Wall Street, but this he does not consider permanent or serious. The price some time ago was $1.70. There vas a steady drop until the price eached 60 cents, and it now ranges between gixty and a dollar. Mr. Williamson states that he considers $1. a fair average price.
